PROPOSITIONS

Delivered by Master

P. M. M. E.

From the House of Commons

in the Year 1701

Printed by J. Sturges

at the Sign of the Gun

in St. Dunstons Church

in the City of London

Die Jovis, 24, Junii, 1641.

The first Head is concerning the disbanding of the Armies, and under this there are severall particulars.

1 That five Regiments according to the former Order of both Houses be first disbanded.

2 That the Commanders for Scotland be intreated to retire some part of their Army.

3 That their Lordships will joine with us in a Petition to his Majesty, to declare his pleasure concerning the disbanding of the five Regiments for which there is present moneys provided, and of the rest of the Army, as soon as moneys is ready.

4 And to declare if any be refractory, and contemne his Majesties authority, that hee will use it for the punishment of them.

5 And that the Lord Generall go down to his charge of the Army, and begin his journey on Saturday next, And that the Master of the Ordnance goe then downe also to take care of his charge of the Artillery.

The second Head is concerning his Majesties journey to Scotland.

That his Majesty will be pleased to allow a convenient time before his journey into Scotland. That both Armies be first disbanded, and some of the businesse of importance concerning the peace of the Kingdome depending in Parliament may be dispatched before his going. This is seconded with divers reasons.

- 1 The safety of his Majesties person.
- 2 Preventing the jealousies of his Subjects.
- 3 Suppressing of the hopes of persons ill affected, that may have designs upon the Army, to disturbe the peace of the Kingdome.
- 4 Great advantage to the Kings affaires, and contentment of his people.

That some of the Bills now depending in Parliament, whereof divers are sent up already to the the Lords, and some proceedings in this House, may receive his Royall Assent before hee goe to Scotland. And that wee may have time to passe the Bill of Tunnage to his Majesty for supporting of the Royall Estate, and to settle his Majesties Revenues for the best advantage of his service: and for those reasons to allow some time before hee goe into North.

The third head concerning his Majesties Councell, and Ministers of State.

Both Houses to make suite to his Majesty to remove move from him all such Counsellors as I am commanded to describe them; such as have bin active for the time past, and in furthering those courses contrary to Religion, liberty, good government of the Kingdome, and as have lately interressed themselves in those Counsels, to stir up division between him and his people.

2 Branch. As we desire removall of those that are evill, so to take into his Councell, for the managing of the great affairs of the Kingdome, such Officers, and Counsellors, as his people and Parliament may have just cause to confide in. That is all concerning the third head.

The fourth head touching the Queens most excellent Majestie, which containeth divers particulars.

1 That his Majesty be pleased, by advise of his Parliament, to perswade the Queen to accept some of the Nobility, and others of trust, into her Majesties service, into such places as are now in her disposall.

2 Is this. That no Jesuite, nor none of Orders, what Countrymen soever, whether French or Italian, be received into her Majesties service, nor any Priest of his Majesties Dominions, English, Scottish, or Irish; and that they be restrained from coming to Court.

3 The Colledge of Capuchines at Somerset-house may be dissolved, & may be sent out of the Kingdome. These two which I last mentioned concerning the Queen, Priests, Jesuits, and Capuchines, I am commanded to deliver you some particulars for it.

1. Publique danger and scandall of the Kingdome, and peace of the Kingdome.

2. Disaffection of some of these wicked conspirators is expressed in two letters, which letters were here read openly.

3. A particular Letter of Father Philipps heer also reade.

4. Particular that concerneth the Queen, Is upon speciall occasion of his Majesties absence, that their Lordships will be pleased to joyn with us to advise the King, that some of the Nobility, and others of quality, with competent Guards, may be appointed to attend the Queenes person, against all designs of papists, and of ill affected persons, and of restraining resort thither in his absence.

The fifth Head concerning the Kings Children.

That some persons of publique trust and well affected in Religion may be placed about the Prince who may take care of his education, and the rest of the Children, especially in matters of Religion and liberty.

6. Head, concerning such as shall come into the Kingdome with title of being the popes Nuntio. That it may be declared that if any man come into this Kingdome with instructions from the Pope of Rome be as in case of high treason out of the Kings protection, and out of the protection of the Law, And am to informe you that there is notice given upon very good grounds that Count Rocetto doth yet continue in the Kingdome, and yet resort to the Court.

The

The seventh Head is concerning the security and peace of the Kingdome.

1 That there may be good Lord Lieutenants, and such as may bee faithfull, and trusty, and carefull of the peace of the Kingdome.

2 That the trayned bands be furnished with Arms, and Powder, and Bullets, and exercised and made fit for service: and that a speciall oath may be prepared by consent of both houses, authorized by Law, and to be taken by the Lord Lieutenants, Captains, and other officers, such an oath as may be fit to secure us in these times of danger.

3 That the five ports and all the ports of the Kingdome may bee put into good hands, and a list of those in whose charge they now are may be presented in parliament, and speciall care for the reparation and provision of these Fortes.

4 That my Lord Admirall may informe the Parliament in what case his Majesties Navy is in, and to be Provided for out of Tunnage and Poundage for the security and peace of the Kingdome.

The eighth Head.

That his Majesty be pleased to give directions to his learned Counsell to prepare a generall pardon in such a large manner as may be for the relief of his Majesties Subjects.

The

The ninth Head.

And that doth concerne a Committee of both Houses, that there Lordships would appoint a number of their members to joyne together with a proportionable number of this house from time to time, who may confer upon such particulars causes as shall be most effectuell to the common good.

The tenth Head.

That his Majesty bee moved that he would bee pleased to be very sparing in sending for papists to Court, and that if any shall come without being sent for, that the Laws be severely put in execution against them, and that the English Ladies that are recusants be removed from Court, and that his Majesty bee moved to give his assent, that the persons of the most active Papists, either Lords or Commons, may be so restrained as may be most necessary for the safety of the Kingdome, and that no pensions be allowed to such Recusants as are held dangerous to the state.

FINIS.
